THE THIRD

INTERNATIONAL MEDICINAL MUSHROOM CONFERENCE

PORT TOWNSEND, WASHINGTON
OCTOBER 12-17, 2005

We are deeply honored to host the next International Medicinal Mushroom Conference to be held October 12th–17th, 2005 in Port Townsend, Washington. The mission of these continuing conferences is to promote the understanding of mushrooms in medicine and in the environment. With the increasing attention centering on the medicinal properties of mushrooms, this event seeks to bring together experts throughout the world. As an international community, the exchange of ideas is critical for advancing this unique field of study.

This event will be held in the conference center at the historic Fort Worden near Port Townsend, Washington, on the eastern edge of the Olympic Peninsula. The close proximity to virgin Old Growth forests will provide a unique opportunity of foraging into some of the most ancient woodlands of the world. The timing of the conference has been selected so that the wild mushroom season will be at its peak. This event promises to not only be academically interesting, but to be visually and empirically rich. We promise an unforgettable experience and hope you will join us in helping to make this conference a success. For up-to-the-minute conference information or to make a reservation, contact Fungi Perfecti at the address/phone number below, or visit the IMMC section of our Web site at <http://www.fungi.com/conference>.
